Cinderella

Aurora's father, a famous conductor, is dead.

Aurora's stepmother forces her to work as a maid in her own house which has been now turned into a hotel. As a child, sometimes, Aurora would find peace in the neighbouring villa's garden where she met her "prince" Sebastian, the owner's young son, a rich tycoon.

It's love at first sight.

A few years later, Aurora, still in love with him, learns that Sebastian has returned to the villa, but he is a very different person.

Will she win his heart? Will she manage to be accepted at the music academy to fulfil her dream of becoming a great pianist like her mother? No worries, the good fairy is ready to help. Mrs. Cooper a former silent-movie star turned millionaire checks into the hotel. She will transform Aurora into a real princess thanks to her "magic wand" with the keys to Cinecittà and its unending treasure of costumes and props.

Nothing is missing in this modern Cinderella. We have the stepmother, the mean and spiteful stepsisters, the crystal shoe, Prince Charming... but we also have the taste of the 1950's.

A romantic comedy in which love meets the glitter of Rome and the glitter of the Dolce Vita.
